   Second area credit for Women's Studies courses

   (a) Motion by EPC that suffixed courses in Women's Studies be accepted as second areas in distribution categories.

   Seconded by Jane Borelli.
Dave Hill moved and Peter Kivisto seconded to postpone consideration of the motion, to take time to rethink and clarify if it will add an area of study to Philosophy, Religion and History.

Substitute Motion: The Proposal be returned to EPC pending consideration of the motion by the relevant divisions.

Seconded by Peter Kivisto.

The discussion of this proposal focused on whether interdisciplinary courses such as WS or LS should be recognized as second areas. Some argued that these were established areas of studies while others contended that courses in Women's Studies or Liberal Studies were similar to the department based courses already recognized. It was noted that Logos and Foundations courses were considered a second area and set a precedent. It was also mentioned that EPC is considering general education revision.

Bob Tallitsch moved to call the question and Heidi Storl seconded it. The substitute motion was voted on and it was not approved.

Original motion was approved.

(b) Motion by EPC that the Supportive Services subcommittee of EPC is abolished, effective immediately.

Seconded by Ralph Troll and approved.

(c) Motion by EPC that the designation "functional major" be eliminated and that courses of study now so designated be added to the list of "interdisciplinary majors," effective with the 1998-2000 catalog.

Seconded by Karin Johnson and approved.

(d) Motion by EPC that interdisciplinary majors and minors adopt, in consultation with the administration, a formal governance structure which includes no fewer than three faculty members from no fewer than two departments. This motion would be effective by the end of winter term, 1997-98.

Seconded by Norm Moline.
The discussion of this motion centered around the need for an advisory committee.

Bob Tallitsch made a motion that they send it back to EPC. It was seconded by Ralph Troll.

Discussion of substitute motion:

It was argued that advising these majors takes considerable training and expertise. Concerns were also expressed that programs involved were not consulted by EPC. It was noted, however, that other interdisciplinary programs such as Asian Studies have worked quite effectively with this committee structure. Providing more expanded governance can help to strengthen the major.

Substitute motion was not approved.

Dave Hill called the question.

The original motion was approved.

The remainder of the agenda was postponed until the next Senate meeting.

A motion was made by Dave Hill and seconded by Lendol Calder to adjourn the meeting.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:50.
