The above notices are taken from the digitized issues of the Inrikes Tidningar 1799, as an example of what you can find in these old newspapers. More was written about this project on page 9 in this issue of SAG.

The Inrikes Tidningar, also under different names, was the official gazette of Sweden, so this is where officers' new commands were published, other official announcements, and also a number of private matters that individuals wanted to make public. During the later 1800s you can see many requests from pastors, who ask if anybody knows if so and so had married during their stay in the U.S.
