Swedes in the 1860 Census of Suffolk Co., MA

Nils William Olsson

Our census enumerations during the past 200 years have become one of the most important primary sources for identifying our forebears. Every decade since 1790 census takers have toiled valiantly to account for every man, woman and child residing in the United States. Beginning with the Seventh Census of 1850 the birth place of the person interviewed was also included, which of course became a great boon to those of us whose ancestors came from Europe or other foreign parts.

Having said this, however, one must, in doing census research, be ever on the alert for errors, omissions, misunderstandings and yes - even a bit of skulduggery. The recent experience as our country struggled with the 1990 Census underlines the awesome task of counting everyone at one particular time. When we perceive how difficult it is to conduct a survey of this type in an age of modern communications, it is easy to understand that our early enumerators were handicapped by not having access to modern technology.

If researchers are mindful of the pitfalls which exist in these census records they can make good use of its rich material by correlating the data with contemporary sources. An example of this method is the presentation below of the Swedes who resided in Suffolk Co., Massachusetts according to the Eighth Census of 1860. Here it has been possible to identify a number of Swedes listed there by comparing the findings with such sources as the Boston city directories, ships' manifests, state and federal naturalization records, parish records as well as material reposing in Swedish archives, in addition, of course, to printed genealogies.

There are of course name mysteries which never will be solved. The Swedish naming system of using patronymics (-son names) poses problems when trying to differentiate between two individuals with identical names. The frequent habit of scrapping one's patronymic for a Swedish-sounding surname upon arrival in the U.S. complicates the process and the total disregard for national identity with which Swedish seafaring men in Boston ditched their surnames for simple English names like Brown, Smith, Thompson and Wilson. This last category is the most difficult of all to crack. It is only where we have access to the person's birth data, as in the case of Henry Lawrence Bailey, that thanks to Thord Bylund of the District Archives in Härnösand we learn that Bailey's original name was Lars Eriksson Stenlund.

The material used in this effort was taken from the Eighth Census for Massachusetts, Microcopy #653, Roll No. 520.

Notes

- ¹Charles G.T. Swanberg, b. in Stockholm 30 March 1825, arr. in Charleston, SC 20 Aug. 1837 and became a U.S. citizen in Boston 25 May 1855. In 1881 he res. at 48 Hanover St. - CC, Vol. 7, No. 209; Eric Wretling, A Swedish City Directory of Boston 1881 (Winter Park, FL 1985), pp. 38, 59, n. 368.
- ²Emely Jeurling's age is obviously incorrect. She is probably identical to Emilia Charlotta Jeurling, b. in Vänersborg, Sweden 25 July 1832, the illegitimate dau. Hedvig Amelia Jeurling. The mother emigr. to the US 1853 and it is fairly certain that her dau. did likewise. In 1860 her age would have been 28, which seems to be more logical. - GLA.
- ³Josiah G. Lovell was a shipwright and owner of Brown and Lovell's Wharf. - Boston City Directory (BCD), 1858.
- ⁴Erik Magnus Söderberg, journeyman tailor, b. in Tunhem Parish (Älvs.) 4 Nov. 1822, emigr. from Älvsborg län and arr. in Boston 6 Aug. 1852 in the company of his wife, Sara Lena Andersdotter, b. in Tunhem 26 June 1828, and a child. He became a U.S. citizen in Boston 22 Oct. 1858. In 1859 he had his business at 59 Clinton St., and res. at 9 Samoset Place. - GLA; DC, Vol. 28, No. 274; Personregister till Statistiska Centralbyråns i Stockholm förteckningar över emigranter 1851-1860 (A118); BCD 1859.
- ⁵This entry is duplicated by also being listed in the Third Ward. The information is essentially the same except that in the second entry (see n. 49) the s. Alfred is given as being b. in MA. Frans Conrad Strömberg was b. in Stockholm 24 Aug. 1821 and arr. in Boston 13 Sept. 1846. He must have returned to Sweden since on 25 Oct. 1848 he rec. pp. in Stockholm for travel to America but with the notation that he possessed a passport issued in New York. In 1850 he res. in Newburyport, MA as a gilder. He became a U.S. citizen in Boston 12 Aug. 1853. In the Boston city directories he is listed variously as a gilder and fancy painter. - ÖÅP; 7th U.S. Census (1850), MA, Vol. 7, p. 534; DC, Vol. 8, No. 216; BCD, 1852, 1854, 1857, 1858.
- ⁶This entry is duplicated by being listed also in the Ninth Ward. The information, however, is not consistent. In the second entry the wife's name is Anna and the husband's age is not the same. O. Christian Olson was b. in Christiania (Oslo) 16 Nov. 1833 and arr. in New York 29 June 1852. He became a U.S. citizen in Boston 26 April 1859. - DC, Vol. 32, No. 165.

- ⁹Andrew Redman b. in Stockholm 22 Feb. 1814 arr. in Boston 1 Jan. 1843. He became a US citizen in Boston 21 Oct. 1858. In 1850 he was res. in the Second Ward of the city. - DC, Vol. 28, No. 203; 7th U.S. Census (1850), MA, Vol. 23, p. 420.
