Silfversparre's Battery During the Civil War

A Roster of the Swedish born Officers and Men of Company H, 1st Illinois Light Artillery 1862-1865

Roger Kvist*

The Swedish artillery officer Axel Silfversparre organized Silfversparre's battery during the end of 1861 and the beginning of 1862, with men from Chicago and surrounding Cook County, and with men from the Swedish immigrant communities in northern Illinois, including Andover, Galesburg, Knoxville, Moline, Rock Island, Rockford, Geneva and St. Charles. The German immigrant community in eastern Missouri, with towns such as Cape Girardeau, St. Louis, and Blue Island, also contributed to the battery. In Silfversparre's Battery Scandinavians were not even half the battery, although Swedes were the largest ethnic group, then came Americans, followed by Germans.

Silfversparre's Battery was mustered into service as Company H, 1st Illinois Volunteer Light Artillery, on 20 February 1862, with Silfversparre as captain. Due to his unpopularity among his men, and trouble with his superiors -- he was court-martialed, but acquitted, twice -- Silfversparre was in August 1862 relieved from command by order of Major General W. T. Sherman. Lieutenant Levi W. Hart of Company B, 1st Illinois Volunteer Light Artillery, superseded him. Silfversparre's friend, and co-organizer, the German born Francis DeGress, succeeded Hart in August 1863, and commanded the company to the end of the war. In spite of the change of commanders, the Swedish immigrant press called the company Silfversparre's battery throughout the war.

Silfversparre's Battery was the Swedish American unit that fought in most battles. Along with other Swedish American units from Illinois, the Silfversparre battery took part in the bloody battle of Shiloh, Tennessee 6-7 April 1862. The battery formed a prominent part of the line of heavy guns near the Tennessee River that on the first night beat back the attacking enemy. After the battle of Shiloh it participated in the capture of Corinth, Mississippi, on 30 May 1862. In December 1862 it took part in Sherman's Yazoo expedition, one of the many failed attempts to take Vicksburg, Mississippi, and in January 1863 in the successful capture of Arkansas Post, Arkansas. During the rest of the spring of 1863 the battery belonged to the large Union force that besieged Vicksburg until the capitulation of that city on 4 July 1863. After the battle the battery contributed to the capture of Jackson, Mississippi 16 July 1863. It then stayed in Mississippi until fall, when the battery participated in the campaign to relieve Chattanooga, Tennessee, besieged by a Confederate army.

After the successful relief of Chattanooga, Silfversparre's battery wintered in northern Alabama. In the spring of 1864, the unit joined Sherman's army in the Atlanta campaign, fighting in the battles of Kennesaw Mountain 27 June 1864 and of Atlanta 22 July 1864. During the last battle the battery lost all its guns to the attacking enemy, but the Union infantry retook them the next day. The battery then took part in Sherman's march through Georgia and the Carolinas during the fall of 1864 and the spring of 1865. Finally it participated in the grand victory review in Washington, D.C., 24 May 1865, before being mustered out at Springfield, Illinois, 14 June 1865. The battery figures prominently in the pages of Hemlandet, as the editor of the newspaper took a stand against Captain Silfversparre in his conflict with the men.

Inheritance Cases in the Archives of the Swedish Foreign Ministry of Swedes who Died in America

Nils William Olsson and Ted Rosvall*

Introduction

Genealogists and researchers of immigration and immigrants delight in new indices, tools that help them recover lost branches of their families or immigrants, who have disappeared in the vastness of their new country. It was therefore a moment of great satisfaction when the authors of this article discovered a name index pertaining to over 1,050 different dossiers in the archives of the Swedish Foreign Ministry (Utrikesdepartementet) on deposit in Sweden's National Archives (Riksarkivet) in Stockholm. These dossiers all concern cases where a Swedish immigrant had died without a family or heirs in the United States and where the various Swedish consulates or the Swedish Embassy in Washington had assisted in finding basic information concerning the deceased. Thanks to these investigations, there are to be found in these dossiers, many important details and clues, information that should aid researchers on both sides of the Atlantic.

The index normally provides the following basic information for each individual:

Name (surname and first names - sometimes also variant spellings or an "alias.")

Date of birth (in a number of cases).

Place of birth (usually by parish, occasionally by city or county).

Date of death.

Place of death (by city, town and state).

File number of dossier.

Additionally, there may also be information concerning "next-of-kin" in Sweden or other pertinent details.

The dossiers themselves differ in size and details, but should always be consulted for more facts and clues not necessarily revealed in the index.

*Ted Rosvall is a leading Swedish genealogist and is a contributing editor of SAG. He resides at Enåsen, Falekvarna, 521 00 Falköping, SWEDEN.

The dossiers concerning the United States are divided into three record groups - the New York (NY) dossiers; the San Francisco (SF) dossiers and the Washington (W) dossiers. The files themselves, however, deal with immigrants all over the U.S. A few of the cases deal with Canadian deaths, in which case the signum is (D) for Diverse or Miscellaneous. The group abbreviation as well as the file number (e.g. SF # 6 or W # 564) must be produced when ordering a dossier from Riksarkivet. The record group title is "UD:s Huvudarkiv Flc -Dossier, Serie II."

This index covers a period of time from the middle of the 1860s to 1901. In 1902 the Foreign Ministry changed the dossier system, but inheritance cases like these continue up until the 1950s and there are card indices to these younger dossiers as well.

Ordell/Olsson

Our great grandfather, Lars Eric Olsson, changed his surname to Ordell the first time he came to America in 1881. He returned to Sweden in 1885, carrying a certificate signed by two clergymen in Chicago, M.W. Eklund and Gustaf Petersson, to the effect that he was eligible to marry. He remarried in Sweden 1886 and returned to the U.S. the same year. He again returned to Sweden in 1889, settling in Älvestad in Kumla Parish (Öre.). He once again came to America with his dau., Ida Amalia, b. 27 Oct. 1890. I have several questions to which I am seeking answers:

- a. Documentation regarding Ordell's first trip to America.
- b. Documentation regarding his subsequent visits.
- c. Who were the Chicago clergymen who signed his certificate?
